

POPI-Slovakia (The Institute of Processoriented Psychology - www.processwork.sk/en/) invites you to a:

Training in Navigating in search of a profession

Training in ressource-oriented career counseling

1 year training accredited by the Slovak Ministry of Education lead by Thomas Diener

The complexity and diversity in the world of work has increased. Questions around the meaning of work and our needs and longings are gaining more and more importance. Life paths are in a constant process of evaluation and re-creation and they don't follow a linear path anymore. For people, who don't have „simple“ conditions it is especially important to discover their opportunities and strenghts. They can often be found in unexpected places.

A person may become a valuable co-worker simply by the joy and enthusiasm they develop if a work is right for them. Resources often hide behind deficits. A proper perspective and way of working with the challenges is needed.

In this training you will learn and practice views and methods of navigating the career path. You will learn to use the decision making process for career and life planning traditional career tests and also „soft“ factors like dreams, wishes, hopes, values, excitement, calling, vision and imagination. The inner structure of this process and how to support others in it will also be taught.

Target group:

For career counselors and work psychologists, social workers working with unemployed people, people from Human resource field, NGO's working in employment and economic development etc, and people from helping professions searching for new and creative ways to help people about the topic of work and life navigation.

ABOUT THE TRAINERS:

Thomas Diener:

I have actively interfaced between the areas of project management and personality development for the last 10 years. I began professionally in advertising and afterwards studied at the Research Association for Process-Oriented Psychology founded by Arnold Mindell in Zurich and Portland and also at the Moreno-Institute in Sweden (Psychodrama and Sociometrics). I have a degree in Psychodrama and Adult Education (SVEB II). Since 2004 I have been attending a DGSv certified education program to become a supervisor under Professor Ferdinand Buer in Münster. I have worked as a personnel consultant in several firms and as a lecturer for psychology and management at a management school. I founded and managed the "Eco-Exchange for Associations" and functioned as project manager for the "Swiss Alternative Business Directory". In 1995 I was awarded the "Promotion Prize for Social Innovation" by the city of Zurich. Today I am active in career counseling, supervision, team development, conflict training and project management.
